Offer To celebrate the 100th anniversary of the National Park Service, the editors of this book attempted to get just one amateur photograph from every National Park Service facility in the nation (and some overseas). Many of the photos are absolutely wonderful, and most do a very good job depicting the essence of the park they represent. I don't know how long this book will be available after the 2016 centennial ends. Better get the book now, while it's still somewhat available. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Good book By Jn Ash Good book 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. it will be good source. But in the days of internet By Anand Murug Photos and short descriptions are there. Photos are organized chronologically. But where is the index? If you just want to see the photos only, it will be good source. But in the days of internet, I don't see any point for the publication of this book.

Yosemite. Yellowstone. The Statue of Liberty. Hot Springs. Canyon de Chelly. Devils Tower. Everglades. Shenandoah. Manzanar. Denali. Independence Hall. Chamizal. Places, people, and events where the compelling chapters in our shared heritage are retold and where landscapes provide tranquility, self-reflection, and exhilaration as new horizons and possibilities are made evident. In 2016 the National Park Service will be 100 years old. To date there are more than 400 parks in the United States, American Samoa, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. One photograph of every park unit is included in this book, arranged in chronological order, starting with the first national park, Yellowstone National Park, and up to the newest park, Waco Mammoth National Monument.

About the Author
Founded in 1947 by National Park Service rangers, Eastern National's vision was to serve as a shared-resource retail and educational network for America's special historical, cultural, and natural places and help to support the interpretive and educational programs of our partners. To extend the reach of their interpretive missions and raise funds to support the parks, the rangers decided to publish and sell park-specific material. Since then, EN has grown to become the largest cooperating association in the United States, servicing over 175 of the nation's most significant cultural, historical, and recreational destinations in 33 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the United States Virgin Islands. We operate museum stores and donate the proceeds from every sale to the partners we serve. Since our founding, we have contributed more than $135 million to our partners in support of vital educational programs. Eastern National produces up to 100 site-specific and service-wide products annually, such as books, brochures, maps, and other materials used to aid the interpretive mission of our partners. These products stand apart from publications of traditional publishers because Eastern National collaborates directly with park interpreters and historians to produce educational materials that fit the specific needs of a park. Through the years, our donations have purchased critical items such as land, artifacts, media for park libraries, period costumes for living history demonstrations and reenactments, signage and exhibits, facility renovations and upgrades, interpretive tools and programs, staff training programs, and much more. Donations also have funded archeological, historical, and cultural research programs that have had a direct impact on the parks and their interpretive programs.
