RobicheauxI am a composer and production supervisor of a documentary on wildlife refuges in Ia. Why would NOAA hire two guys with backgrounds in the arts to document these refuges. Because they are desperate. They know what is in store for the future. The so-call debate over global warming, data skewing, and political positions will soon be a thing of the past. Nature is not a democrat or a republican, it is just going to do what it is going to do.Earl Robicheaux, Louisiana1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Children will listenBy N. T. MindesThis book when placed into the hands of a child they get it. They understand through the beauty and majesty of the photography that there is an important story being told. When my little niece saw this book she said she felt sad that for the lonely penguin on the cover. She wanted to know if there was a way to help him. When I asked her what she thought of the book she said she like the pictures a lot.You will too.Antarctica: A Call to Action

Master photographer and Global Green leader, Sebastian Copeland, issues a global clarion call in his latest book Antarctica: A Call to Action, the sequel to his bestselling Antarctica: The Global Warning. Copeland's awe-inspiring images of the frozen continent capture the beauty of the glaciers, biodiversity, and wild wide seas of the Drake. Along with exceptional new photographs, Antarctica: A Call To Action is a concise and visually compelling discussion about global warming with a hopeful and helpful new take: each of us can make a positive difference through small changes. With insightful commentary, the purity of undoctored photographs and "takeaways" provide readers with simple lifestyle changes to help preserve Antarctica's fragile ecosystem. A highly accessible and hopeful book, Antarctica: A Call to Action will inspire everyone to save this magnificent continent for future generations. Simple changes to save Antarctica, and the planet: WASH COLD Washing laundry in cold instead of warm water once a week saves 250 pounds of carbon dioxide from entering the atmosphere per year. DRIVE LESS Five miles less driving per week eliminates 900 pounds of carbon dioxide per year. SHOWERS Taking showers instead of baths eliminates 1,000 pounds of carbon dioxide per year.

About the Author Sebastian Copeland is an award-winning photographer, author, lecturer, and environmental activist. His photographs have appeared in hundreds of publications worldwide including GQ, Marie Claire, The Face, Elle magazine, Vanity Fair, Interview magazine, and National Geographic Explorer. A relentless pursuit for a sustainable future has led to a seat on the Board of Directors for the US Branch of Mikhail Gorbachev's Green Cross International as well as Shine On Sierra Leone. For his bestselling book Antarctica: The Global Warning, Copeland won the Professional Photographer of the Year award in the book category from the prestigious 2007 International Photography Awards. In 2006, he also won two first place awards at the IPA.
