I think the good Capt did a great job getting the message that "cruising" is totally accessible to those who want to engage. His lifestyle advise was right on as was the simple way he explained what to bring. His "route" might be a tad confusing if someone needs the packaged "trip" but for those who are willing to download a chart and enter his waypoints will see his route first hand. We did use vasaline to preserve eggs and our antique Garmin was accurate in yards, not feet, you used it as a compliment to a set of charts and sharpened pencil. We will still consider using a black weed sprayer for hot showers, they work great!

This book provides a great insight of how to get there. While repetitive at times it comes clear that the points made are the most important. Thank you.
