If you are interested in redevelopment or involved with your local efforts to reimagine yourselves, this is a must read. The book is well written, designed to inform those who want to learn, but told as a great story. Be prepared to turn green with envy over the long sustained effort, vision, plan, and results chronicled in this small volume. The chapter on Saving the Poinsett Hotel, in and of itself, was worth the price of admission. I must hurry off now to learn more about W.L. Stoddart who designed not only The Poinsett, but other famous hotels. This proves my point that one good book only leads to another. You will enjoy spending time with Knox White, Mayor, and author John Boyanoski, who have made a lasting contribution to how we can save Main Street.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great book of greenvilleBy CarlyKayIf you like downtown Greenville and want to learn about its development this book is for you. It's quite interesting0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Highly recommendBy CustomerFascinating account of a city on the move. Great stories showing how persistence paid off.

Greenville's downtown is widely recognized as one of the best in America, earning praise from sources including Oprah, Ben Stein, Esquire and Southern Living. This proud achievement is a credit to the community that banded together to build something special from a decaying city center. The story of this careful, deliberate effort by city and community leaders has long been overshadowed by its success. Join authors John Boyanoski and Mayor Knox White as they detail the toil and tribulations that produced a world-class city.

About the AuthorJohn Boyanoski spent a decade covering the city of Greenville (and other beats) for the Greenville News and Greenville Journal before opening his own public relations firm in 2012. A winner of numerous journalism awards, he is the author of three other books and is active in the community, sitting on several boards. He is a native of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and a graduate of Syracuse University. Knox White has served as mayor of Greenville since December 1995. As mayor, he has the goal of making the city of Greenville "the most beautiful and livable city in America." He has emphasized neighborhood revitalization, economic development and transformational projects for downtown. A native of Greenville and a graduate of Christ Church Episcopal School, Greenville High School, Wake Forest University and the University of South Carolina School of Law, Knox White is a partner in the law firm of Haynsworth, Sinkler Boyd, where he heads the firm's immigration and customs practices. He is married to Marsha P. White, and they have two children.
