Michael Creurer : Safety Travel Etiquette tips...for pedestrians on wheels before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Safety Travel Etiquette tips...for pedestrians on wheels:

0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Disappointing brochure. Contains only basic common sense. By Susan Elizabeth Anderson I was very disappointed with this pamphlet (it is not a paperback book). It contains information, such as look both ways when crossing a street, don't get in fights with others on the street, look behind you when backing up, and take an umbrella in case of rain. The most useful information in this thing is not to drive over glass and other sharp objects or you will get a flat. They also advise not to drive your scooter or wheelchair behind vehicles that are backing up. This "book" is a total waste of money!

Valuable tips for the beginner and experienced operator of a medi-scooter or power chair. This booklet is the result of many years of the author's personal experience interacting with motorists and other pedestrians around his city and a few others in Canada and the US. The booklet is currently being used by: the Red Cross Scooter Safety Training Seminars; occupational therapists for their clients; and medical supply stores across Canada to help users get a head start becoming accustomed to being pedestrians on wheels. The booklet includes numerous tips for the safe use and enjoyment of a scooter or power chair along with a checklist of things to be aware of before leaving home.

About the Author Forced to drastically change his life-style due to physical disability, Michael has journeyed into the realms of personal counselling and writing. His major work to date is Changing Lanes...a guide to help when ageing, illness or disability forces us into the slow lane. The recently published booklet Safety Travel Etiquette tips...for pedestrians on wheels is the result of his involvement with the Red Cross Scooter Safety Seminars.
